

Calabash

A JOURNAL OF CARIBBEAN ARTS AND LETTERS

Volume 3, Number 1: Fall/Spring 2004/2005

Information about this work:

Ocean

By: PEGGY GARRISON

Start Page: 90

URL: <http://library.nyu.edu/calabash/vol3no1/0301090.pdf>

Calabash: A Journal of Caribbean Arts and Letters is an international literary journal dedicated to publishing works encompassing, but not limited to, the Anglophone, Francophone, Hispanophone and Dutch-speaking Caribbean. The Journal is especially dedicated to presenting the arts and letters of those communities that have long been under-represented within the creative discourse of the region, among them: Aruba and the Netherlands Antilles, Maroon societies, and the Asian and Amerindian societies of the region. Calabash has a strong visual arts component.

Calabash is published by New York University. Please contact the publisher for further permissions regarding the use of this work. Publisher information may be obtained at: <http://library.nyu.edu/calabash/about.html>

Calabash: A Journal of Caribbean Arts and Letters

© 2004 New York University

Peggy Garrison

OCEAN

• • •

I'm riding the D train to Brooklyn (PC skills in just 2 weeks, pay per view, Claritin-D, Decision VI contra la SIDA) on my way to teach poetry in Brighton Beach. It's about 8:30; I haven't eaten yet.

(I'm on a diet that'll go belly up at 4pm).

Walking to the subway

I was thinking about great writers--

Mahfouz and Tolstoy, Edith Wharton, Balzac--

I was also thinking about the ocean (a chord effect), thinking that when a writer gets really immersed it's like bathing in the ocean, a baptism from which she/he returns renewed. I picture the black book of Rukeyser poems on the barstool next to my bed, think about her intense phrase flow; sky, sun on brick houses--my train's going elevated now--sometimes

I feel spirits

 buoying me up.